

WARREN REID

Warren Isaak Reid is the Founder and CEO of NEMNET Minority Recruitment, Inc.

Established in 1994, NEMNET began as a local resource organization committed to helping Connecticut private schools in the recruitment of diverse teachers and administrators. Today, NEMNET is a national diversity recruitment and consulting firm that serves over 350 public and private member schools and assists over 2000 job seekers annually.

Warren is a trusted consultant and regularly advises some of the most prestigious secondary educational institutions in the United States. He is known for leading transformational change and providing research-based strategy to assist institutions in improving their diversity recruitment efforts. Much of his work focuses on educating boards, training HR teams and cultivating communities of color. Warren has advised Harvard College, the National Association of Independent Schools [NAIS], the Association of Independent Schools in New England [AISNE], the NAACP and STAPLES, Inc., among others.

Warren is a former independent school educator who, at the age of 20, began his career as a Dewitt Wallace Fellow at the Pomfret School where he taught History, served as a three-sport coach, student advisor, dormitory parent and Director of Multicultural Affairs.

Born and raised in Brooklyn, NY, Warren is a graduate of Middlebury College, the Columbia University Institute for Urban Education and the Harvard Graduate School of Education. Mr. Reid is an honored member of the Omega Psi Phi and Sigma Pi Phi Fraternities, dedicated mentor and an absolutely terrible golfer.

Warren recently celebrated 20 years of marriage and is a proud parent of two; Langston [14] and Lena [12]. He and his family have spent the last 7 years abroad and currently live in Zurich, Switzerland.
